By order of Captain Waddilove a signal was run up for assistance, and it was at once observed in the barbour. Working parties were told off from the Duke of Wellington, and despatched to Spithead with a number of naval surgeons. Meanwhile, the smoke and steam were beginning to disappear, thus enabling those on board to descend to the engine department, but it was nearly an hour before the stoke-bole could be thoroughly explored. It was then found that the whole of the front of the starboard foremost boiler in the after stoke-hole had been blown out with such force as to carry away everything ib struck. The truth is that nothing can be more utterly irrational than rejecting the Divite authority of the Church. It is not by any process of the pure reasoning that any man in the whole world rejects the Church; it is through fragmentary or partial observation, through want of scratiny between principles and accidents, through confusing Divine law with human nature, and through want of philosophical thought. THE DEFRECIATION OF SILVER. Journal Committee on the depresiation of silver is a very able document. It appears to have been drawn up by the chairman, Mr Goseben, and accepted, with comparatively minor amendments, by the Committee, and it has the dearness, the precision, and the great information, no matter at what labour acquired for which Mr. Goschen's writings on such subjects are remarkable. From full information we see the nature of the evil from which we are suffering. What we are suffering from is the apprehension of increased production of silver Chinese Imperial Loan-£95. suddenly supervening on a market previously perturbed, upon which one Government had forced an extra supply, from which a union of other Governments, had refused to take, as usual, any supply, and in which another Government, by an increase of the tribute. it requires from a silver-importing country, has temporarily, if not permanently, lessened the domand. This explanation of the real malady. at once disposes of a crowd of unreal remedies. No competent person can propose a demonetization of silver in India, and a substitution of gold for it, just at a moment when the price of silver has been thrust down by so strong an apprahension caused by such peculiar circumstances, Again, no one would propose to arrest coining silver in the East as a remedy for such a state of things, for this would only disorder the silver mark tatill further. It would add a new political difficulty to those previous political difficulties which have danged so much disturbance, and so make the existing confusion far worse than before. Nor can it be maintained. that the Indian Covernment should now require the ryot, whose rent has been formerly fixed in silver, to pay either in gold itself, or in so much more silver as would purchase the same quantity of gold as that fixed rent would have purchased when the settlement was made. The real remedy is to leave the great natural forces of trade to operate unrestricted. The true remedy for an enfeebled market is an access of demand. and in this case the laws of commerce, if not suspended or orippled by State interference, vill produce that demand.

THE INDIAN WAR IN THE UNITED The detailed accounts of the defeat of General Custer's force in the attack upon the Sioux add ! little to the main facts which were given in the & Co., adjoining the Cathedral Compound. telegraphic summary. His temerity resulted not only in the total destruction of his own detachment of cavalry, but very nearly proved fatal to Major Reno's command. Custer reached the Indian Settlement. village on Rosebud Creek, near which Crock had been allecked on the 17th of June, on the an Eight-roomed Dwelling House, debuched, morning of Sunday, June 25th, with eight com. with Garden all round, Offices, Godowns, Serpanies of cavalry. It was no doubt injudicious to divide so small a force wearied with an exceptionally long merch in the presence of such a strong body of Sionx; but General Custer had with him the linest regiment of frontier cavilry in the United States service, and against any other tribe than the Sioux be might have been justified in running the risk, The two detachments thus separated never met again, nor was Mejor Reno aware of the fate which had befallen bis known as Messrs. He was then rescued by General Terry, who had come up by forced marches, but not before he had suffered very severely. It is stated that "Old Sitting Bull" and his Sionz, combined with a body of Arrapatioes and Cheyennes, bave now abandoned their encampment, and some time may slapse before anything is hourd of their whereabouts. The slaughter of so many Americans and the wounding of so many more by a desperate foe has roused a ory for vengeance even from those who previously defended the action of the Indiane. A war of extermination will, therefore, be at once begun, Tuere oun belittle doubt, however, that there are many Americans who will regret that the final struggle with the Indians should have been provoked by Du Pont's Blasting and Sporting Powder; Lake many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub. people suffer from the dreamness of life. That can happen as well in a town, and all the more intensely. Then there will be super added the feeling that made the punishment of Tantalus severe of being within sight and sound of the desired without the power of anjoyment. Streaming through the streets are countless multitudes of people, some of whom might turn this desert of present existence into a tair and smiling garden i only the airy barriers of conventional separation were with lrawn, and bearts left free to make their own world happy; for life is dreary for the want of interest m ve than for the want of amusement-for the want of an absorbing occupation; and the best interest that we can take is in each other, and the best occupation that which does good to our kind. Give the dreary-living woman a child to educate, a sick sister to nurse, a good man to love, or oven some work to do that has a tangible and purposeful end in view, and where is her gloom then? It has gone. It went when her affections found a rooting place and her activities. an outlet. Fir of this we may be very sure, that occupation which take: the mind out of itself banishes dreariness from the heart, and that a great and absorbing love has the same power. But, we must confess it with shame, human nature does not live at high pressure full of joy as to make it independent of outside circumstances, after a time sinks down though part of the very heart of life, is not the whole of its need. Hence even lovers of the most passionate kind, set down to fulfit their existence in a dreary country place, surrounded only by dreary eircumstances, find that love and marriage lose something of their exquisite savour for the want-of not live apart too often come to the knowledge that they do not care to live together with no one but each other. - Queen.
